Workshop (Cont)

- If you're a follower of Candace's work, you might have noticed that she never seems to do the same thing twice. She calls herself "tess-curious", and it's that spirit of discovering new materials and new ways of using and combining them that keeps her excited about art. Take a close look at the colorful beetles in Coleoptera Wheel and you'll see stained glass, smalti, china, millefiori, beads, formed tile, and eggshell, all uniting seamlessly into a dynamic expression of an everyday bug.
- Inspiration will be taken from naturalist-led walks around the property, which includes rainforest, landscaped gardens, herb gardens, and farmland. Materials will be a mix of student and instructor-supplied yummys. Candace will share her process from inspiration to design, material selection, fabrication and completion and will also talk about her experimental work.
